

“Information Harvesting”

I have been very active spawning new simple, technology inspired businesses since 1993. It gives me great pleasure to announce my 3rd challenge as an entrepreneur.

EverySense, Inc. is a newly founded company to create a new business landscape using the potential of IoT and M2M.

For a quarter of century, we have experienced an Internet revolution fuelled by the need for people to be connected. Today we have a huge number of interfaces to communicate with each other. Therefore, it is becoming a way of life that we use more than one device such as a smart phone, laptop and wearable, etc to stay connected. We are expecting to enjoy a smart life with those devices, which are simply called smart in the future.

It is my firm belief that this dream will come true if we have practical and correct ways to break through the gaps between technology and services.

EverySense, Inc. will provide you with the means to fill those gaps using highly sophisticated and fully tested solutions from R&D. I know that this statement is quite abstract and vague at this point. EverySense, Inc. will bring the change to enable us to pursue our dream of achieving a smart life for everybody.

We have plenty of work ahead and are ready to meet and surpass your expectations. Some of you may say "Oh no old guys! The Start-Up is not your business", but entrepreneurs and human ingenuity come from people of all ages and walks of life. Rather we need to be even more determined to develop better technologies to make life smarter and better that can help the elderly to live a quality life and continue to contribute to society.

I would like to encourage your joining to help create new innovations for a better society because the smart life is not only for us.

Information harvesting will open the door to the smart life society.

Sincerely,

Hiroshi Mano,
President & CEO, EverySense, Inc.